SATURDAY. Report of Marshal Parke on the Portu-HONOLULE, Feb. 13, 1882.

W. N. Armstrong, Esq., Attorney General. MY DEAR SIR :- In accordance with your instruction of the 30th of January, I left Honolulu for Maui on the 31st of January, and on the 2d of February in company with Father Leonore proceeded to Hamakuapoko, to the plantation of which Mr. C. H. Alexander is Manager, under Mr. S. T. Alexander, one of the proprietors of said plantation, to enquire into the cause at least thirty. of the trouble on said plantation on the 28th of January last. I afforded every facility to Father Leonore to examine all the parties in connection with the affair of the 28th of January, and I enclose herewith a copy of all the testimony taken at that time, which occupied five days—also the evidence taken before the District Justice at Makawao. You will see that it is of two dates, at the first trial on January 28th, they all plead guilty to the charge of "resisting an officer in the discharge of his duty," and as the case had, at the request of Mr. Thomas W. Everett, the Sheriff of Maui, been postponed until Friday, the 3d of February, for sentence, as he thought it would be better to allow the excitement caused in the affair to allay, I then on Friday went to the Court House in Makawao to attend to the action of the instige.

his brother officers will yet be saved.

This is probably one of the saddest stories that has ever been chronicled on the Pacific coast. The young lady's sad history is very similar to Lady Franklin's, and she will undoubtedly receive great sympathy from the feminine portion of the whole country.

[We take pleasure in appending the fol-

On my arrival there I found that two of the Hawaiian lawyers had been engaged to defend the prisoners, and as at the former trial they had no attorneys to defend them, I thought it best not to take their plea of guilty and allow them to plead not guilty, as the attorneys for the prisoners had requested me.

The result of that investigation and trial is appended to this report. Father Leonore was with me and was pleased with my action in the case and I hope it will meet with your approval.

I will now make a statement in regard to the main questions.

It seemed that one John Gomez, a Portuguese laborer on the plantation, but not under contract from the Board of Emigration, but a shipped man under ordinary contract, was employed in the sugar mill at Hamakuapoko, and the sugar-boiler Mr. Bixby, for the reason which you will see in his testimony, ordered him at work on the cane-carrier, and in about two hours after ordered him seeing that the balance of the Portuguese upheld Gomez, and supposing that they would make trou-ble if he undertook to use force, left Gomez there and applied for a warrant for his arrest, for "having refused to obey his orders as to where he should work." The man was at work at that time on the cane-carrier and had not refused

The warrant was issued and on the 28th of January a native constable, Kikoopaoa by name proceeded with the warrant to arrest Gomez, and I refer you to his testimony as to what took place on his arrival at the mill. And I am of the opinion from his testimony and from others that all the Portuguese then at work on the cane-carrier with Gomez resisted the officer, and would not allow the constable to execute his warrant. They had made C. H. Alexander went with the constable taking with him his Portuguese interpreter, and endeav-ored to persuade the Portuguese at work with Gomez, to the number of thirteen to not interfere with the officer in the execution of the warrant. But they did not listen to Mr. C. H. Alexander, so Mr. Alexander directed the officer to return to Ma-kawao and report the same to Mr. Magoon, the Deputy Sheriff, which he did. I refer you to the testimony of Mr. C. H. Alexander and of his inter preter John Costa in this connection.

Mr. Magoon arrived at the mill, starting from Makawao as soon as the officer reported the condition of affairs, and in company with his officers to arrest Gomez, who was still at work on the cane-carrier. Mr. Magoon attempted to arrest Gomez but was resisted by the Portuguese; he then called for assistance and one of the employees a Mr. Bosqui arrested Gomez. As soon as that was done, the other Portuguese all made an attack on Mr. Magoon, not with cane-knives as at first reported, but with sticks of sugar cane, and then it was that Mr. Magoon drew his pistol and fired. I refer you to his testimony, also to that of Mr. Bosqui, R. W. Andrews and to that of Mr. Stoltz in regard to the assault on Magoon. And they are of the opinion, that had not Magoon fired his life would have been endangered as you will see by their evidence. In the affray two cane-knives were thrown at Mr. Magoon by some of the Portu-guese, but did not hit him; those were the only deadly weapons used by the Portuguese in the affray, but you will see that they had gathered all the cane-knives together for use, but for some reason did not use them.

The man shot by Mr. Magoon says, he did not run at Magoon to assault him but was running for his wife who had come out of her house to see what was going on; and he supposes Mr. Magoon thought he was after him, then he was shot in the cheek, the ball passing around to his neck and has been extracted, and I am happy to report that he is recovering from the wound. The other man who was shot in the leg, about half way up from the knee to the hip, the ball is still in him, but in the opinion of the medical men is in no danger and will be well in a short time. He was shot by a native constable by the name of Kauna, and in his evidence you can see the reason he gives for the shooting. You see by the evidence of all the Portuguese excepting two, that no resistance was offered by any of them at any time, and that the two men that were shot were shot without any cause. The one shot in the cheek says, that he was on his way to his wife and Magoon struck him with a whip, and as Magoon did so, he grab-bed the whip, then Magoon fired and hit him. But Mr. Magoon says that is all false, and you will see that the evidence of all the foreigners in contradictory to those of all the Portuguese. A number of persons that I had conversed with are of the opinion that Mr. Magoon was justified in the use of fire-arms, from the fact that all the Portuguese at work at the mill had agreed that two of the Portuguese before Justice Mossman corroborate their impressions, and the evidence of R. W. Andrews and Mr. Stoltz are to the effect that they considered Mr. Magoon's life in danger.

I shall be most happy to render any explanation in regard to the evidence.

I remain yours truly.

I remain yours truly, W. C. Parke, Marshal The testimony of R. W. Andrews an eye-witness The testimony of K. W. Andrews an eye-witness is in part: "The man who got shot in the leg was the most prominent resisting. When Gomez resisted, one of the Portuguese coming like a wild beast to attack Magoon, he defended himself with his whip. I heard Magoon shout out words of warning repeatedly, I think that if Magoon had not fired his life would have been endangered."

THE LOST JEANNETTE. A TOUCHING ROMANCE CONNECTED WITH THE LOST SHIP.

The Los Angelos (Cal.) Times tells the following story:
It seems that Miss — was visiting friends 9. She met Lieutenant Danenhower, (well affair. But the old, old saying to st love never ran smooth, was never plainly illustrated than in this c. se. several months there was not a har .... in all San Francisco. This earthly t could not last long, however. The " la .

ant was under orders to sail with the same ed Jeanette. As the time drew near the sweet girl became sad and pensive, and it was a com-mon thing for her to meet her lover with tearful eyes. She told him her fears, and pleaded with all the elequence only known to a lovely maiden, but her lover had been ordered by his country to go to almost cer-tain death, and his honor would not permit him to break his word, even for the being he worshipped. The sad day of separation finally arrived, and the two devoted lovers parted, possibly never to meet again in this

This is the sad story told in brief by the old coachman who related his tale with tears in his eyes.

"Yes, sir," said the old fellow, "she has been a different girl ever since. They had only known one another a short time, but I don't believe two people ever loved as did this devoted couple. Why, sir, her mother said that when the lieutenant came to bid her good-by it took two of his brother offlcers to separate them when the moment of parting came. She fainted almost as soon as he was out of the house. When she revived she ordered a carriage and immediately repaired to the Cliff House. As soon as she arrived there she took a stand where she could get a good view of the Golden Gate. Neither commands nor coaking could move her until she was satisfied that the vessel had passed out to sea. After returning to Los Angelos she led a retired life, having been convinced from the first that she would never see her lover again. She has never failed to be up by daylight since the Jeannette sailed in order to read the telegraphic news. That sir, has been the only thing that has ever interested her. When she got the Times this morning and got the news from the Jeannette, you might have heard her screams almost a mile off. The whole family were in bed at the time.
When they reached her she was in a faint, and everybody thought she was dead. But God was not kind enough to put the poor girl out of her misery. The first thing she said was 'Mamma, take me to San Francisco at once.' She don't seem to know what she wants, but her mother would start for the spot where the Learneste was lost if for the spot where the Jeannette was lost if her daughter would ask it.

"How old is she?" "She was nineteen last October, but to look at her now you would think she was The young lady is well known in this city, and up to within the past two years was one of the brightest and most beautiful of Los Angelos belles. Her name is suppressed for the present, and her unfortunate love affair is known to but few, as the family have made every effort to keep it quiet.

For the sake of the girl, if for no other reason it is most devoutly hoped that the third boat with the gallant lieutenant and his brother officers will yet be saved.

This is probably one of the saddest stories that he is probably one of the saddest stories.

[We take pleasure in appending the following item of news to the above story: "Irkutsk, January, 1882, Dannenhower and nine men return to the United States. Danenhower's sight (impaired by Arctic snows) is partly recovered .- (Signed) Melville." We hope the sight of the brave lieutenant was sufficiently restored to enable him to #### gaze once more upon his faithful love .- Ed. What Time of the Day to Bathe

There is no objection to bathing at any time of the day, except just after a meal. The reason for avoiding this is simply that the process of digestion requires and involves a fulness of the blood-vessels of internal organs, as well as a certo return to the mill which he refused to do. The | tain amount of nerve force. Hence any shock, as sugar-boiler, Mr. Bixby, reported it to Mr. C. H. Alexander the Manager. Mr. Alexander then went and ordered Gomez to go inside the mill to work, Gomez still refused. Then Mr. Alexander of the body, may readily induce an extreme congestion there. Moreover, like any other active exercise taken at such a time, bathing would hinder digestion, or even put a stop to it altogether. The result is generally a very great degree of discomfort; reaction takes place slowly. and there is apt to be headache, gastrie oppression, and perhaps serious illness. Life even may be endangered by imprudence in this respect. As to bathing before breakfast, it is a fine habit for robust people, and the gentlemen of the family who have, it may be, to catch an early train for town, must often bathe at that hour or not at all. But to turn out of bed and go shivering down to the beach is not to be recommended to those whose constitutions are in any way delicate. up their minds that he should not be arrested. The constable then called on Mr. C. H. Alexander and informed him of the state of affairs, when Mr. fortunate individuals whose time is more or less fortunate individuals whose time is more or less at their own disposal, is that of midday. This hour has a physiological advantage in the recognized fact that it is with most persons the period of greatest vital activity, so that the shock is better borne then than at any other part of the day. Thus Braun says, speaking of the daily variation of the amount of natural heat: "It reaches its maximum between ten and twelve o'clock; in the afternoou it falls again; and reaches its lowest point at two o'clock in the morning; between ten o'clock in the morning and five o'clock in the evening the variation is smallest, and between seven and nine o'clock in the evening it is greatest. In children this variation is greater than in adults, often amounting in them to more than 3.6 degrees Fab.; in the latter it is less. " The correctness of this general statement may often be verified in case of sickness, when the failure of power is apt to be plainly noticeable in the early morning hours, as well as its increase in the middle of the day. The choice of this hour is open to only two ob jections: the heat of the sun, and occasionally, where the beach shelves sharply, the state of the tide. Sometimes the water, in the latter case, deepens so abruptly and the waves are so strong, as to make it upsafe for any but robust persons to go in at all. At such places it is necessary to change the bathing hour from day to day, so as to take advantage of a more lavorable stage of the tide. After a day in town, it is a great temptation to most persons to take an afternoon bath, and there is no objection to it for those in good health. It must be remembered, however, that the already fatigued body is less capable of withstanding the shock of the cold water, and bence that the bather should not stay in so long as at midday. Imprudence in this respect may give rise to serious discomfort, if not to perma-

Beer in England.

A British statesman who recently had the

that the beer interest is on the decline is severely handled by one of the journals devoted to the protection of that bibulous industry. The print in question draws upon its armory of facts and figures, and triumphantly presents to the borrised gaze of the advocates of temperance an array of statistics which is not calculated to have an exhilarating effect upon the cold water apo Gomez should not be arrested, and the evidence of | The first statistical shot fired by it goes clear through the temperance magazine. There are, it exultingly declares, forty thousand breweries in Europe, and of all the houses in England and Wales the formidable number of one hundred and thirteen thousand, or one in every forty, are devoted to the sale of liquor in some form or another. This is an enormous proportion of what are called "rum shops" to shops and private dwellings which do not dispense the deadly or delicious beverage according as it is regarded by its enemies or its friends. One beer-house in every forty is a record of which every beer-lover should be proud. All the religious denominations put together cannot show as many houses of worship and schools, public or private. But this is not the only evidence of the conquering march and progress of beer. British spirits and beer represented, so far as consumption went, in the decade just before the last one, four hundred and fifty million dollars, while in the decade just closed these figures have risen to the enormous sum of seven hundred and eighty million dollars. In the face of all this it is idle to declare that beer is on the decline. On the contrary, in the known in Honolulu), of the United States
